

Types Of Eye Bolts You Need To Know About

Eye Bolt is one of the most common types of bolt fastener that is known for its unique design. The thing that makes its design unique is an eye shape hole on the one end and threads along the length on the other side. It basically used for the purpose of hanging something on the concrete, for instance, hanging a photo on the wall. When you step into the market to explore their different types, so, Eye Bolt Manufacturers offer you plenty of options that might confuse you. In an order to make the right decision, you have to know about all its possible available types, which are as follows.

- Non-Shouldered Eye Bolt: One of the common types of eye bolt is non-shouldered one and its application includes inline loading that is helpful for pulling and lifting. It is mainly used in drilled tap holes and is very easy to install.
- Shouldered Eye Bolt: These are mainly designed to use in through holes and are mainly get secure with nut. It is used in a number of applications and has great demand in the market for its unique design and outstanding features.
- Machinery Eye Bolt: Used only in tapped blind holes and available in different sizes to meet the diverse application demand of the different customers.

All its three types are very common and known for serving different purposes. It is important to consider your application requirement before you buy, to get the full value of money. If you are looking for a reputable Screw Manufacturers, Ferry International is the name you can trust. You can call us directly on the given numbers to know more about our complete range.